Cops Racist, Violent And Poor Behavior On Facebook Law Enforcement Social Media Training .htm	2020-08-21 22:25	266K

REFLECT ON THE EXPRESSED POSITION STATEMENTS OF MIKE BIRES HERE:

COPS RACIST, VIOLENT AND POOR BEHAVIOR ON FACEBOOK LAW ENFORCEMENT SOCIAL MEDIA TRAINING.HTM

SO WHAT HAS CAUSED THIS BEHAVIOR?

We believe this outright display of anger, sarcasm, and unprofessional online conduct, has been created by a math form [??? With the combination of these elements; our online culture, the slanted reporting on law enforcement activities and officers, the passa laws which benefit the criminal [???, the lack of holding others accountable for their actions, and a lack of training.

First, the culture created by the public for what is now the "norm" on social media, and the tolerance by the individual socia platforms themselves, is a big part of the problem.[??? This culture has led people to believe the say whatever they want, as long as it is not a direct threat or advocacy of a crime, on social media. People can be rude, argumentative, degrading, abu: confrontational without any form of accountability.

Some people are consistently leaving negative, unwarranted, disgusting comments on police Facebook pages solely to embarrass or belittle the departmer knowing nothing will happen to them. In fact, in many cases, the comments must be left up for the world to see, as people claim a First Amendment right to s want on a government social media post.

Next, there are slanted media outlets, blogs, advocates, and so-called "watchdog" groups whose sole intent is to make police officers look like fools, and the concept of how to enforce the laws. You've probably seen the posts or videos that start with, "Cop gets owned" or "Police get owned." Photos and videos liki more fuel to an officer's anger. Ironically, an officer's anger is the same anger an employee at a fast food restaurant, a retail store, a plumber, a doctor, or a n experience if people were doing the same to their professions.

Then you have laws which reward the criminal for their behavior [??? and place the law abiding citizen and p risk. You may remember the video of Mark Robinson at a North Carolina council meeting where he said the majority "are the first one's taxed, the last ones r first one's punished when things like this (shootings) happen."

We have a lack of accountability today, for those doing crimes in our society. How many articles have you read where politicians, to include district attorneys: said they aren't going to file charges against people for certain crimes?

Californians joke about the fact it's legal to have a hypodermic needle for easier use of illegal drugs, but be a waiter and give someone a plastic straw and y have charges placed on you.

Last is a lack of training we mentioned in the opening of this article and described below. When you add these factors up, it's no wonder why cops are quite They're stressed, over-worked, underpaid, unhealthy, injured and society keeps beating the crap out of them.

Worried About Swearing Too Much? Science Says You Shouldn't Be

People who swear like a sailor are more honest and more intelligent, studies show.

Well, damn. Maybe you stubbed your toe first thing in the morning. Or some thoughtless commuter forced you to slam the brakes on the drive to work. Perhaps you're just fed up with it all -- your knees and cursing the heavens.

If you've ever suppressed the urge to unleash a string of obscenities, maybe think again. Some research suggests that it might be a better idea to simply let the filth fly.

Scientifically speaking, a penchant for profanity doesn't seem to be such a bad thing. Studies have shown that swearing relieves stress, dulls the sensation of pain, fosters camaraderie and with traits like verbal fluency, openness and honesty.

And the effects of cursing are physical as well as mental. A 2018 study in Psychology of Sport and Exercise found that letting out a few choice words during a workout can actually make you a study, participants who cursed aloud while gripping a hand vise were able to squeeze harder and longer.

Timothy Jay, professor emeritus of psychology at the Massachusetts College of Liberal Arts, thinks that humans partly developed taboo language as an emotional release valve.

"There's a point where it's just more efficient to say, 'F*&^ you,' than it is to hit somebody," adds Jay, a world-renowned expert in cursing. "We've evolved this very efficient way to vent our emotions to others."

The Phenomenology of Group Stalking ('Gang-Stalking'): A Content Analysis of Subjective Experiences

Epidemiological data suggest that as many as 0.66% of adult women and 0.17% of adult men in the western world may suffer the subjective experience of being group-stalked ('gang stalker').
ncbi.nlm.nih.gov

I WILL NOT ACCEPT SILENCE OR "NO" WE CANNOT DISCUSS THESE MATTERS FOR AN ANSWER.

Introduction: Stalking by individuals has been found to result in high rates both of psychological distress and lasting psychiatric morbidity, in particular post-traumatic symptomatology and [1,4,10,18,19,20]. The one study to examine the psychological sequelae of the experience of being gang stalked found that individuals who had been group or gang stalked scored significant depressive symptoms, post-traumatic symptomatology and adverse impact on social and occupational functioning than those who were individually stalked [5]. The only other published study samples that we could locate detailed four cases reported by the media of men who had engaged in extreme violence as a response to the perception that they were the target of gang stalk and James [5] and Sarteschi [21] concluded that the subjects of their studies were suffering or had suffered from severe psychological distress in the context of their subjective gang-stalking the experience of gang-stalking being so widely reported and the evidence of its harmful effects on individuals and on society at large, there is a dearth of research into its nature and into the constitute the experience. Sheridan and James' study [5] appears to be the only one to have investigated this central feature of this subject. As with most studies of victim experiences, the upon questionnaire data from self-selected respondents. Whilst the questionnaire included free-text items for describing subjective experiences, its bulk text comprised a collection of inform defined data points. Those concerning the types of intrusive behaviour and experiences that constitute stalking were taken from Spitzberg's [22] meta-analysis, which extracted data for this 43 studies. The focus of both the separate studies and of the meta-analysis was on the phenomenon of being stalked by a single individual. As such, Sheridan and James' study in effect in of phenomena on the questionnaire respondents and, as such, may potentially have excluded experiences amongst gang-stalked respondents that did not fit into the standard pattern report individuals.

9:41 AM

3. Results 3.1. Length of Stalking None of the writers of the narratives described their experiences as having ended. All 50 authors stated or implied that they had been gang stalked for length (e.g., one mentioned being seen by seven psychologists during the period of being targeted, another described having been targeted whilst living in three different countries). The shortest case having begun "in the last few months" and the longest as continuing for "more than 22 years". 3.2. Reasons for the Gang-Stalking The narratives were examined to establish whether the person targeted by gang stalkers could be identified. Reasons were found in 20 of the 50 accounts. In all 20 cases, no named person was believed to be targeting the victim. Representative examples given for the gang-stalking were as follows: "Why? To drive people to meet-up groups or a psychiatrist so they can be medicated and/or get more federal grants for more mental health instead of police force. Post Traumatic Stress Disorder is a big seller in the area." =====[ Content Cut Here ]=====

Doctor Veronica Kelley --- As a part of the associated topics that I had in consult with Dr. Christopher Berger two separate 2 and 1/2 hour talk sessions with him -- for a total of 5 consult hours was being targeted by the community in hate ---- Dr. Berger cannot claim his independence of these facts were missed --- ===== I did not actually come across the term #GangStalking across social media -- I have been using the tag #ConspiracyExposedTerminatesASAP -- and as of my #fauled interface with Dr. Eric Tomomi Shigeno HIV Care at @BorregoHealth

--- I am of the status #HIVUNTREATABLE --- More on this but for now -- I NEED YOUR CONFIRMATION THAT YOU ARE PRESENT AND ACCOUNTED FOR IN HIS DM TOOL PLEASE. TARGETED INDIVIDUAL OF #GangStalking --- that has been ongoing and never ended for 15 years. As the details above show -- 22 years is the reported length of another person's experience when will a community address their hate embedded in the community and accept the truth as it surfaces in an NIH [ National Institutes of Health ] Researching Findings Publication on April 9, 2019

Asking the question, "Are you thinking about suicide?", communicates that you are open to talking about suicide in a non-judgmental and supportive way. Suicide is preventable. #BeThe1

Worried About Swearing Too Much? Science Says You Shouldn't Be
People who swear like a sailor are more honest and more intelligent, studies show.

By Alex Orlando January 14, 2020 6:00 AM

Letting out a few choice words can help relieve pain, and might even make you a little bit stronger.

Well, damn. Maybe you stubbed your toe first thing in the morning. Or some thoughtless commuter forced you to slam the brakes on the drive to work. Perhaps you're just fed up with it all and feel like sinking to your knees and cursing the heavens.

If you've ever suppressed the urge to unleash a string of obscenities, maybe think again. Some research suggests that it might be a better idea to simply let the filth fly.

Scientifically speaking, a penchant for profanity doesn't seem to be such a bad thing. Studies have shown that swearing relieves stress, dulls the sensation of pain, fosters camaraderie among peers and is linked with traits like verbal fluency, openness and honesty.

BLOCKING WITHIN THE FACEBOOK MESSENGER BETWEEN THE PUBLIC AGENCY PAGE OF [ San Bernardino County Department of Behavioral Health ] is a violation of my first amendment rights but more important, as a part attempting to avoid truth, you are preventing truth from being discussed and are GUILTY of Conspiracy Against Rights and Color of Laws in US.Code Title 18, Section 241 and US Code Title 18, Section 242.

TO REMEDY THIS ---

I DEMAND THAT YOU RESPECT MY RIGHTS == YOU CANNOT BLOCK MEMBER ACCOUNTS PER REFERENCED DOCUMENT:

https://knightcolumbia.org/...

2. Don't block users or delete comments just because they criticize you.

If you use your account as an extension of your office, the First Amendment prohibits you from blocking people from the account—or suppressing or deleting their comments, or otherwise penalizing them—because of their viewpoints.

Multiple courts have held that social media accounts used for official purposes are “public forums” within the meaning of the First Amendment. A “public forum” is established when the government invites members of the public to speak in a space that the government owns or controls. Courts have held that the interactive features of social media accounts used for official purposes make those accounts public forums for First Amendment purposes because they enable members of the public to speak by, for example, replying to tweets or posting comments.

While there are different kinds of forums—including public forums in which all topics and speakers are allowed, and "limited" public forums, in which the government restricts which speakers can participate or which topics can be addressed—one rule that applies to all First Amendment forums is that the government may not stop people from speaking in them on the basis of their viewpoints. The rule against viewpoint discrimination ensures that people aren't excluded from public discourse simply because their views are controversial or disagreeable to others. It also helps ensure that government officials don't insulate themselves from the opinions of the people whom they are supposed to represent.

One related point is worth making here. Social media companies sometimes remove speech from their platforms that you, as a public official, couldn't lawfully suppress or block. Because the companies are private actors, their conduct is generally not subject to First Amendment limitations. But your conduct is. In our view, the First Amendment bars public officials from directing or encouraging platforms to take down speech that the officials couldn't constitutionally take down themselves. If the First Amendment bars you from suppressing speech directly, it bars you from suppressing it indirectly, too.

Our advice: If you use your account for official purposes, don't discriminate on the basis of viewpoint. It's undemocratic and unconstitutional.

UNBLOCK THE FACEBOOK MESSENGER CHANNEL SO WE CAN ACTUALLY ENGAGE IN A TRUTH DISCUSSION REGARDING:

By mere mention of the feature that the public can comment -- as I mentioned I have already done with my doctors involved in a conspiracy, that this man takes my action by mere mention I can comment as a "threat!" -- you have to just listen to the call in its entirety to understand what and where this details any and all integrity that this person is completely separate from the violations of my rights, which he is not. I initiate Call #2 for closure purposes.

Voice Telephone Call #2

The ending of call #2 notes that Bruce Cooke would read the NIH GOV Health Respositry Document and call me back. I have not received any calls to progress this matter forward, per the intentions said by Mr. Cooke in this short closing of these concerns.

Great Reasons Us Will Unite Peace

----- All of us are quite aware of, and deeply worried by, the disturbing social and political situation of the world today. Our world is increasingly a place of violent conflict, hatred and brutal atrocities, committed even in the name of God and of religion. We know that no religion is immune from forms of individual delusion or ideological extremism. This means that we must be especially attentive to every type of fundamentalism, whether religious or of any other kind. A delicate balance is required to combat violence perpetrated in the name of a religion, an ideology or an economic system, while also safeguarding religious freedom, intellectual freedom and individual freedoms. But there is another temptation which we must especially guard against: the simplistic reductionism which sees only good or evil; or, if you will, the righteous and sinners. The contemporary world, with its open wounds which affect so many of our brothers and sisters, demands that we confront every form of polarization which would divide it into these two camps. We know that in the attempt to be freed of the enemy without, we can be tempted to feed the enemy within. To imitate the hatred and violence of tyrants and murderers is the best way to take their place. That is something which you, as a people, reject. Our response must instead be one of hope and healing, of peace and justice. We are asked to summon the courage and the intelligence to resolve today's many geopolitical and economic crises. Even in the developed world, the effects of unjust structures and actions are all too apparent. Our efforts must aim at restoring hope, righting wrongs, maintaining commitments, and thus promoting the well-being of individuals and of peoples. We must move forward together, as one, in a renewed spirit of fraternity and solidarity, cooperating generously for the common good. The challenges facing us today call for a renewal of that spirit of cooperation, which has accomplished so much good throughout the history of the United States. The complexity, the gravity and the urgency of these challenges demand that we pool our resources and talents, and resolve to support one another, with respect for our differences and our convictions of conscience. Pope Francis : US Congress : Sept 2015
